

Carole Steeves

Carole was a key contributor to the Bradley Tea Room and Maple Magic pancake production. Carole was always willing to go that extra step to support the Museums in every way she could. She had her certain jobs at each event (Clinic for Teddy Bears, Admission for Halloween, pancakes for Maple Magic) and when Carole was there everything was taken care of. She was always a valuable and reliable resource for Museum staff. Carole was a very caring family oriented person and these qualities were reflected in her work at the Museums.

Betty Ross

Betty was a lovely lady and a tireless worker. Betty was involved in everything that the Museums did. She was on the Bradley Board, Museums of Mississauga Advisory Committee, Friends of the Museums Board, Tea Room, and event planning committees. Betty was always the first person to call when help was needed. Betty loved meeting people. (This love of personal contact was perhaps why she never embraced answering machine technology.) When not busy with the Museums or her other varied interests, Betty loved spending time with her family and her dog, Cracker Jack.

John Davies

John was a quiet man but would happily and intelligently express his opinion on a wide variety of topics if asked. John was a regular volunteer and made significant contributions to many of the events involving the Museums. As long time area residents, John and his wife of many years, Wendy, participated in many community events and organizations in addition to their regular volunteer work with the Museums. For many years, Museum staff knew that John was never more than a phone call away when a volunteer was needed.
